

Mick Tobin - (ROI)

Working as a civil servant in the Irish Health Service for over 32 years. I have gained knowledge and education from many various areas. Working in areas from theatre, casualty, wards, management and over 18 years as a front-line paramedic with the National Ambulance Service. The knowledge I have gained has been put to work in education and tutoring in frontline services. Retiring in 2019, I have concentrated all my time into training in the EMS services. Qualifying as an assessor in medical and trauma at the WRO challenge in Lisbon in 2015.

I am honoured as Director of Operations for the ROI, to be given the opportunity to represent Rescue Organisation Ireland as an assessor in the first WRC Triage challenge.
